DON'T RUN IN DEBT

Don't run in debt, naver mind, never mind, if thy clother are faded and torn, Then to have the heart weary and worn

Who'd love you the more for the set of your hat,
Or your rull, or the Us of your hat.
The shape of your vest, or your brots or cravet,
If they know you're in debt for the new?

There's no comfort, I tell you, in walking the street, In fine clothen, if you know you're in debt, And feel that perchance you some tradesman

Who will sheer, "they're not paid for yet." Good friends, let me beg of you, don't run in doln
If the chairs and the one are old,
They will be your back better than any now set,

Unites they are paid for with gold.

If the house is too small, draw it clear together, Keep it warm with a hearty good will; A big one unpaid for in all kinds of weather. Will send to your warm hearts achill.

Den's run in dont r now, doar girls take a hint;
If the fashions have changed since hat season. Old sature is out in the very same tint,

Just say to your friends that you cannot afford To spend than to keep up with the fashiou; That your purse is too light, and your honor. To be tarnished with such silly passions.

Have fine houses, fine fenthers and flowers, unless they are paid for, be more of man

Than to envy the ir sunshiny bours. Byon've money to spare, I have nothing to any,
Byond your deliars and dimes as you please;
Mat, mind you, the man who he makes has to pay,

In the man who is never at case,

Kind humands, don't rup in debt any more ! "Twilldill your wife's cup full of sorrow. To ano w that a neighbor may call at your door. With a bill you must settle to-morrow.

But lest you may some of you doubt it.
I'll whisper a secret, now seeing 'lis you,
I'buve briest it, and know all about it.

he chain of the siebtor is heavy and cold, Ite links all corresion and pust; iid it o'er as you will, it is never of gold, Then spurn it saids with disgust

The man who's in debt is too often a slave.

The bis heart may be honest and true;

Can be held up his head and look sawly and brave. 7 Whou a note his can's pay bootmon due?

MAKING HASTE TO BE RICH. A FEARFUL DREAM.

Does any body remember two re-markable plates in the book of Mar-tin Chuzzlewit? The wondrous city tin Chuzzlewit? The wondrous city of Eden as it appeared in print, and the wondrous city of Eden as it proved in reality. Does he remember Martin's rapture, his uplifted hands and eyes, when reverentially contemplating the public buildings in the picture; his indignation at Mark Tapley's somewhatsuspicious remark, 'perhaps they growed spontaneous?' Just what that flourishing city of Eden, in print, was to the enraptured mind of Martin Chuzzlewit, had the Great Trebeddon mining scheme been to Mr. don mining scheme been tolMr Adam Grainger; and just what it proved to be when the two expectant travelers reached it—a feverish swamp—a wild ruin—had the Great Trebeddon Mines faded to now.

But did even this effect the cure and open the eyes of Mr. Grainger? Not it. Not yet. If he had had fif-ty thousand dollars at his command, he would still have thrown it into the yawning gulf. But he had not the fifty thousand; no, nor fifty dollars.

Need the reader be told the sequel?

The Great Trebeddon Mines proved a failure. Whether from want of copper and tin, or from want of capital to disembowel them, is of no con e-quence here; they failed, and ruin o-vertook many of those who had con-nected themselves with them. The upon them; the report of the failure of the mines flew about far and wide; the landlord paid him a visit in the peculiar fashion loved by landlords, and all the tradespeople came down upon him together. And so that was the ending of the Great Trededdon Mines, and of the happinets and prosperity of Adam Grainger and his home. If some who read this would but take warning for themselves !-There are a few such schemes agate
